Teams of Tomorrow hires public relations intern

STARKVILLE, Miss.—March 5, 2021—Teams of Tomorrow recently hired Huntsville, Alabama, native Sarah Colvert, a current junior communication student at Mississippi State University, as a public relations intern to help the organization communicate with the public daily.

As public relations intern, Colvert will write blog posts, news releases and feature stories for the organization's publications. Along with these responsibilities, Colvert will also design brochures, flyers and social media posts in order to broaden TOT's reach.

"I am so excited to welcome Sarah to Teams of Tomorrow," said Natalie Jolly, director for TOT Golden Triangle. "With her experience and communication skills, I'm positive that Sarah will be the perfect addition to my team."

During her time at MSU, Colvert has been very active on and off-campus. As a member of the Phi Mu fraternity, Colvert serves as the Phi Mu Executive Council Panhellenic Delegate, where she coordinates with other panhellenic members and advisors. Colvert is also an active member of MSU's chapter of Public Relations Student Society of America, where she serves as a member of the social media committee.

Colvert is a 2018 graduate of Westminster Christian Academy in Huntsville, Alabama. She is the daughter of Paul and Jeanette Colvert of Huntsville.

Teams of Tomorrow is a company based in West Monroe, Louisiana. TOT's focus is to develop skills in athletics, academics and agility in preschoolers across the nation through manipulative play, ball-handling skills and academic concepts. TOT desires to "enhance the lives of children, families, and communities... with your help!"
